his own State, forbids the establishment of any State banks of issue. If the 10 per cent. tax were abelished to-morrow Mr. THURMAN'S State would have nothing to fear from bogus banks nor from wild-cat banking. Not so with Virginia. How-ever, we must confess that we do not expect that tax to be removed by the present Congress. The people are not ripe for such felly yet. But if by any possibility that tax should be removed the real question would still remain to be settlednamely, the establishment of a Statebank system of wild-cat banking. It is, therefore, a clear case that it is one thing to vote to repeal the tax in question and quite another thing to go into the business of wild-cat banking.

Mr. THURMAN favors so amending the national-banking law as to allow any national bank to issue circulating notes up to the face value of 100 per cent. upon deposits of 90 per cent, with the United States in gold and silver com other than subsidiary silver. This fact shows that Mr. THURMAN is not afflicted with the fever of anti-paternalism. He no doubt considers it rather late in the day to raise such questions, seeing that this sore of "paternalism" has had full sway for the last thirty years. Possibly "the noblest Roman of them all," his father, the great statesman, Arten G. Thusman, has told the son that it would not redound to his credit to waste his time advocating the resolutions of 1798-'99. There is some merit in the proposition to allow the national banks to issue notes of circulation upon deposits of gold and silver. The old independent State banks and other State banks used to issue three dollars of their circulating notes upon one dollar of silver or gold in the vaults of the banks. Certainly Mr. TRURMAN'S proposition is better that the proposition to allow the re-establishment of the old Statebanking system. In fact, nothing could be much more objectionable than the proposition to return to the wild-cat system of ante-bellum days.

Mr. THUBMAN would condition the repeal of the Sheaman law upon allowing the free coinage of silver at the present ratio

But enough as to Mr. Tuunan. What his convention recommends will be of more importance than his own utterances.

No Switching Off.

"After us, the flood." The one question which Congress was called to consider is the financial question. We wish to emphasize the prediction that if the President allows Congress to think that he considers tariff reform as important as currency reform there will be a large number of good Democratic members who will thwith begin to rail at "protection, and denounce the proposition to lay a tax upon one man in order to put money into pockets of another man. The air will be laden with denunciations of the advocates of high customs duties. But the good Democrats referred to will advocate tariff reform not because they care so much about it, but because they are not sure what they believe in as to the currency questions now before the country. Oh, no. Let us have no dodging—no switching off—but a direct vote upon currency reform.

We do not see how the Virginia Bar As-BEDICAL

sociation could have selected a better man for its president than the Hon. Waller R.

Statler. He possesses every requisite for the place, and it is well known that he accepts no position to which he does not and experience. He will become the place, and the association has honored itself in noring him.

Lynch Law and Barbarism. The Hon. R. T. Barron, of Winchester. president of the Virginia Bar Association, in his annual report made to that body at its meeting at the Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs on Tuesday, discussed among other things "lynch law." Of it he said: "Justify ourselves as we may, after all lynching is in some degree murder, and every instance of it in any community is a lapse to that extent into barbarism."

This is what we all feel and what many of us say-until we are brought face to face with a case where one of our own women has been the victim of the man who is to be punished. Then we either join the mob and string the man up or rejoice when others have done it and left us guiltless of actual participation in the

The usual answer to this question is No!" Then Judge Lynch is called in.

Alas we see the evil and deplore it, but the remedy does not appear to be nigh. We grope in vain to lay hold of it. Unquestionably the outside world regards lynchings as barbarous.
